

ITALY TO DECLARE WAR OFFICIALLY ON TURKEY BY NOON FRIDAY, REPORT

WHILE ITALIANS HAVE NOT MADE ADVANCE AS YET, WAR IS VERY IMMINENT.

ARE READY TO STRIKE

Turkish Government Notified That Italians Will Occupy Tripoli and Cyrene—Period of Grace Expires at Noon.

London, Sept. 28.—A private cablegram from Tripoli timed in that city at 3:15 this afternoon, indicates that the place had not been occupied by the Italians up to that hour.

A despatch from Rome says the period of grace allowed Turkey will expire at noon tomorrow (Friday).

It is stated that Italy has notified Turkey of its intention to occupy Tripoli and Cyrene.

Paris, Sept. 28.—A dispatch from Tripoli today says all is quiet there. Notwithstanding the confidence of the consular corps in the ability of the government to protect foreigners, a panic prevails among a large part of the European residents, and hundreds are leaving daily.

Few Italians remain and these will board a steamer which leaves tonight. Business is suspended and shops are closed.

War Must Come.

Berlin, Germany, Sept. 28.—Hopes for a peaceful settlement of the Tripoli situation have virtually been abandoned. Orders were issued today for the dispatch of two German warships to Tripoli to safeguard German interests there.

France Waiting.

Paris, France, Sept. 28.—The French cruisers Leon Gambetta and Ernest Renan have been ordered to sail for Italy to protect French interests there. Advice received here today says that the Italian blockade of the coast of Tripoli is complete.

Second Squadron.

A second expeditionary squadron of warships headed by the big battleship Umbria, sailed from Spezia last night. This force is under general orders, but it is believed here that its destination is the Turkish coast and that it will maintain a blockade of the sea coast town of Turkey. The Turkish fleet at Beirut which is of little consequence, has been ordered to Constantinople. The London stock market was seriously affected today and weakened by the fear of international trouble growing out of the situation.

Expect Fighting.

London, Eng., Sept. 28.—Immediate hostilities are looked for in Tripoli. Advice from Constantinople today stated that the Italian charge-de-feaire had handed to the foreign minister an official note declaring Turkey's reply of last night refusing the allegations that Turkey was strengthening her hand in Tripoli by landing arms and ammunition from the transport Duria, was unsatisfactory.

Italy Ready.

Riding off the port of Tripoli is the Italian expeditionary force of four battleships and three cruisers, carrying transports containing 30,000 picked Italian soldiers.

In Close Touch.

They are in constant touch with the war and navy departments by wireless. The transports are equipped to land the soldiers protected by the big guns of the fleet.

All is Ready.

Rome (Continued), Sept. 28.—The entire Italian navy is now in commission and most of the warships have sailed from Palermo and other ports. Word is inofficially expected here that Tripoli, Benghazi and Derna have been occupied under the protective guns of the fleet.

Was Defiant.

It is admitted here that the action of Turkey in sending the transport Duria to Tripoli in disregard of the Italian government suggestion constituted a defiance that cannot be pardoned. Turkey has officially informed the powers that the troops on board were intended to protect the city from 2,000 bandits.

Country Exalted.

The country is wildly excited over war prospects. Despite strong opposition of socialists the crash with Italy which now everybody considers inevitable is welcomed by Italian people. The reservists are flocking to the flag and wholesale arrests of anti-militarists have been made.

Porte Weakening.

Constantinople, Sept. 28.—The Porte is weakening under Italian pressure. Disappointed over the failure of the powers to respond to its urgent appeals for aid against Italy, the Turkish cabinet, following a lengthy conference today, announced that it was willing to make material concessions to Italy in Tripoli if Turkish territorial integrity is respected. It is not considered likely, however, that Italy in view of her firm stand, will consent to any arrangement whereby Turkey would retain control of the government.

POLITICS WARMING UP IN QUAKER CITY

Hottest Campaign in Years Is Now on to Determine Whether Machine Will Still Handle Republican Party.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 28.—It is doubtful if the political pot in Quaker City ever has boiled at a livelier rate than at present, on the eve of the primaries in which the fate of the Republican machine and the political prestige of United States Senator Boies Penrose are about equally divided.

Outstanding the fight in the primary election to be held day after tomorrow is to determine who shall be the Republican nominee to succeed John E. Potters as mayor of Philadelphia, and who shall be the county officials. Senator Penrose, as one of the leaders of the Taft forces at Washington, felt it incumbent upon him to insure a Republican victory in Philadelphia this fall with the national election so close at hand. Consequently when it was proposed to nominate a candidate for mayor unacceptable to him he lost no time in getting into the fight.

The Penrose choice for the majority is George H. Earle, Jr., president of the Real Estate Trust Company and prominent in financial circles. Opposed to Mr. Earle is William S. Vare, a member of the Vare family which is said to have made millions out of municipal contracts. The Vare candidacy has the support of Mayor Heyburn, though the Mayor found it advisable to declare his neutrality in the contest after steps had been taken for a legislative investigation of his administration.

The Democratic party and the Key-stone party, the last-named composed of reformers from both the old parties, are united in their opposition to the Republicans but divided in their choice of candidates. One faction is supporting Rudolph Blankenburg, while the other favors J. Clarence Gibbons. Both Blankenburg and Gibbons are well known as reformers.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Sept. 28.—Speeding across the broad reaches of Iowa on the "invasion" of the west, the President of the United States today, his invasion of the Iowa stronghold of insurgency, Kansas, the original home of insurgency was behind him. President Taft turned out the biggest crowds in Kansas, he has yet met on his trip, but they listened in silence and attention. "I was well satisfied with my reception in Kansas," was his attitude today "and wish to express my appreciation of the welcome given me by the people of Kansas."

"The people of Kansas," said one of the insurgent leaders today, "Taft's standing with Kansas now depends on what is done at next session of Congress. If his promises of tariff reform through the tariff board, fulfilled he may have a chance, bright now he is on probation." The President's first stop today was at Council Bluffs. Later in the day he made a radio platform speech at Woodbine. The insurgent districts of Frank P. Woodward and C. E. ## WICKERSHAM SAVES THE BRADDOCK ROCK

Efforts of Attorney General Will Preserve Historic Spot From Vandals and Souvenir Hunters.

Washington, Sept. 28.—In addition to dissolving trusts and performing other stern acts Attorney General Wickersham has activities inspired by sentiment. Through his initiative the Braddock rock, one of the historic landmarks of Washington, will be preserved from vandals. The rock is on the bank of the Potomac and in the grounds of the Naval hospital. It has been hacked by souvenir hunters and, though once on level ground, it is now in a depression six feet deep. The rock gets its name from the fact that it marks the landing place of General Braddock and his colonial forces, which started there in 1755 for Fort Duquesne, now Pittsburgh, and were defeated by the Indians and the French. George Washington was a member of Braddock's staff.

In later years it was the base mark for important surveys in the laying out of Washington. Even now, the Attorney General says, it is important point in connection with certain investigations which may lead to litigation to determine the right of the United States to lands bordering on the Potomac.

Wickersham gave the Navy Department a history of the rock in great detail and as the result of the interest he aroused steps will be taken to ensure the lasting preservation of the rock by building a solid iron fence around its resting place.

At six o'clock last evening in Burlington, Wis., occurred the marriage of Miss Leonore Melnhardt to Ralph H. Van Cleave of Exeter, Cal. The ceremony was performed in the parlor of the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Eliza Melnhardt, the bride standing under a canopy of pink roses, white clematis and ferns. While the Hamilton orchestra of Milwaukee, played the Lohengrin wedding march, the bride entered, passing through an arched formed between the guests to where the clergyman stood. Mrs. Samuel H. Behlin of this city, as matron of honor, led the procession, followed by Miss Antonette Rogers and flower girl and the Misses Anna Hadenoch of Chicago, Margaret Rogers of Milwaukee, Nora Hull of Sparta, and Corneille Pettibone of Burlington, as bridesmaids.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Dr. Francis Melnhardt and they proceeded down the aisle to the altar where they were met by the groom, his best man, Samuel H. Behlin of this city, and the Rev. Hans Monson of Jefferson, who pronounced them man and wife. The bride was given away by her brother, Dr. Francis Melnhardt.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white net over white muslin with a tulle of rose point lace and a bodice of pearl. The matron of honor wore a gown of white muslin over white muslin and carried pink roses. Miss Antonette Rogers, flower girl, wore a gown of white muslin over pink silk and carried a basket of pink roses. The bridesmaids wore pink and white flannel gowns.

A four course supper was served following the wedding and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing. ### WILL NOT WAIT FOR THE CITY TO PAVE Tracks on North Main Street Are Being Laid to the Rockford Interurban's Freight Office.

It is doubtful if the city begins its paving on North Main street this fall, owing to delays in securing brick and in consequence the Rockford Interurban has started Wednesday afternoon to lay its tracks north on Main street, from the intersection of Milwaukee street to the new freight and express office located nearly opposite the St. Paul freight office. The crossing at Main and Milwaukee streets has already been completed and the big freight cars have been running across the street for some days, where they have unobstructed. With the extension of the tracks the cars will run directly to the proposed terminal as soon as the track is laid and properly ballasted.

P. W. Ryan has the contract for the grading of the extension and his son, William Ryan, is in personal charge of the work. Six teams were put to work this morning on the scrapers, graders and mowers. The grading will be finished by Saturday. The track will be laid at an average depth of six inches below the present surface of the street, and in places will be as much as ten inches below the surface. The material excavated for the laying of the track is being hauled to a point near the interurban freight depot where it is being used to make a grade for a new track to be laid there. The city has begun to cut the street down to the track level. The best of material is being used for street repairs.

But One Criminal Action, Case of State vs. Emmett Walsh, on Calendar For Term Opening Next Monday.

Out of the fifty-seven cases on the docket for the October term of the circuit court for Rock County, which will open next Monday, Oct. 2, there is only one criminal action which is the case of the State of Wisconsin against Emmett Walsh. ### BELOIT FARM HAND COMMITS SUICIDE

Leon Eddy, Employed by L. E. Smith, Near Beloit, Shot Himself Yesterday Afternoon.

Young and in good health, with no known cause for the act, Leon Eddy, employed by Lewis E. Smith on the Houston farm near Beloit, shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. Eddy is twenty years of age and during his employment by Mr. Smith had been faithful and industrious. He was apparently in good spirits at noon yesterday and after dinner went about his duties in the usual manner.

Mrs. Smith, who drove to Beloit in the afternoon, was notified of the occurrence by phone and Officer Lamphour of the Beloit police force and an undertaker hurried to the Houston farm. It is intimated that he was slightly unbalanced mentally.

Eddy was unmarried and an orphan. He is a nephew of John Eddy of Beloit, and of Prof. R. J. Eddy, formerly of the same city.

MAY TEST LEGALITY OF INCOME TAX LAW

Supreme Court Will Take Action on Application For Injunction to Prevent Enforcement of New Law.

Janesville residents who are making preparations to comply with the new income tax law, will be interested to know that the state tax commission is making preparations to put the law into effect. At the same time the law may be tested for its constitutionality before the state supreme court as an application for injunction preventing the enforcement of the act, was denied a Madison corporation, and the matter was carried high. The Madison State Journal publishes an article as follows concerning the matter:

"Preparatory to putting into operation the new income tax law passed by the legislature, the state tax commission is gathering data on income legislation and making investigations into the availability of assessors of incomes, who will furnish the data on which the law will be applied.

"In the meantime the law in a sense is on trial before the supreme court. Naturally a constitutional test of the statute would be demanded and this may come out of the proceedings now before the court. Soon after the law was passed application was made to the attorney general through the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Milwaukee for an injunction restraining the tax commission from spending any money in the enforcement of the law. This was denied, and opened the way for taking the matter directly to the supreme court, which was done in a petition for leave to bring suit to test the constitutionality of the law and asking an injunction restraining the commission from enforcing it. Action on these matters may be announced at the meeting of the supreme court next Tuesday.

"But regardless as to whether or not the court will act the commission is going ahead with its work. The commission will appoint assessors of income amounting to practically one for each county. In some cases a number of the less populous counties may be combined in one district, while some of the more populous ones may have more than one. They will be paid on the basis of the assessed valuation of their districts and probably will be expected to give their whole time to the work. Assailants will probably be allowed where necessary. Income of all persons will be ascertained as nearly as possible.

"The commission will select these assessors with care, that strong and able men may be secured, and as their appointment is independent of local influences the commission is confident that the law will be given a good trial and be executed as justly as possible.

"The present administration undoubtedly will execute the law firmly and intelligently with a view to vindicate rather than discredit it, and unless the next legislature should repeal it the effectiveness of the statute should soon be determined. Its operation will be watched with great interest by students of economic everywhere, as there is no other law just like it in the country. If the law stands it is expected that the tax on incomes will do away with the personal property tax."

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY CLOSES IN FUNERAL

Remains of Mrs. Colla Carlson, Murdered By Her Suicide Husband, Laid To Rest in Oak Hill Cemetery This Afternoon.

The last and chapter in the domestic troubles of Mrs. Colla Carlson, and her husband, Leo G. Carlson, which culminated in the tragic death of both last Monday, was closed this afternoon with the funeral rites over the young wife. Yesterday the remains of Mr. Carlson, who chose to end his earthly troubles by taking the lives of both himself and his girl wife, were interred in a Rockford cemetery. This afternoon the body of Mrs. Carlson was laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

The funeral services were held at two o'clock at St. Paul's German Lutheran church at the corner of Academy and School streets. The Rev. C. J. Koerner was the officiating clergyman, and large numbers of relatives and friends, mourning her untimely death, attended. Mrs. Carlson had a large acquaintance and was beloved by many. She was not quite twenty-one years old, and in the prime of young womanhood, when the bullet of her desperate husband terminated her life. Among those who were here to attend the funeral were Mrs. Matilda Puch, an aunt living in Aberdeen, S. D., and Mrs. Ferdinand Butzlaff and daughter of Green, Iowa.

WEAKNESS OF THE LAW.

One of the weaknesses of the Sherman anti-trust law, is that it recognizes sentiment in business, and while from a high moral standpoint this is all right, as a matter of fact it is all theory, for there is no sentiment in business.

The people who have a grievance against the Standard Oil company, the sugar combine, and the United States Steel Corporation are represented by the limited class which have been crowded out of business through competition. The general public has no grievance, which could be defined.

The small order house, and department stores are crowding more people out of business every year than the large corporations have crowded out in a decade, and yet every family has a catalogue, and no thought is given to the home merchant.

Up in Marinette they support a department store to the tune of a million dollars a year, and twenty small dealers, unable to compete, have been obliged to retire from the field.

"Our best families," all over the land, buy Larkin soap, and let the local druggists keep their wares, because there is neither sentiment nor loyalty in business.

The man in trade or in manufacturing, expects to adapt himself to changing conditions and when he is crowded out through the evolution, which is going on, he neither asks nor expects sympathy. The shoemaker, the harness-maker, and the old time printer, are largely of the past, because of changed conditions.

There are a few monopolies which need government regulation, because they combine to restrict production, and keep prices up. This is detrimental because it works injustice to the large army of consumers.

The construction of the Sherman law, by the supreme court, may remedy some of the defects. In the meantime its provisions should be so clearly defined that it will cause to be a menace to the business world.

THE SECRET.

One day in huckleberry time, when little Johnny Falls

And half a dozen other boys were starting with their pals

To gather berries, Johnny's pa in talking with him said

That he could tell him how to pick so he'd come out ahead.

"First find your bush," said Johnny's pa, "and then stick to it till you've picked it clean. Let those go chasing all about who will

In search of better bushes; but it's picking tells, my son.

To look at fifty bushes doesn't count

like picking one."

And Johnny did as he was told, and sure enough, he found ly sticking to his bush while all the others chased around

In search of better picking, 'twas as his father said:

For while the others looked he worked,

and so came out ahead.

And Johnny recollected this when he became a man.

And first of all he laid him out a well-determined plan.

So while the brilliant triflers failed with all their brains and push.

Wise, steady-going Johnny won by

"sticking to his bush."

Someone has said that the best definition of genius is hard work, and whether the statement be true or not, the average man who meets with ordinary success, is the man who sticks

but for the support of J. Pierpont Morgan, results would have been disastrous. The Steel company will contest any government attack, at Morgan's advice.

Six hundred cases of wooden shoes were recently received at Grand Rapids, Mich., from Amsterdam, Holland. The United States consul at Amsterdam says that the United States is the best foreign customer of the Netherlands for this article of manufacture, many hundreds of pairs of wooden shoes being worn in Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey, and a few other states. In fact, it is claimed that there is more wooden footwear in Chicago, Grand Rapids, or Holland, Mich., than in the city of Amsterdam.

Thomas A. Edison, the great American inventor, is touring in Germany, and when in Berlin, the other day, gave out the following impressions to the press: "Your greatest asset in your Emperor. He has a grand business head. The talk of war with England never gets as far as industrial Germany's pockets. They know England is necessary to them. They are a great country, but they cannot live without foreign help. The problem of the future is the adjustment of wages, so that the workman can live comfortably; Germany has not solved it any more than we have. I am not a socialist, but I believe in wages for workmen that make them comfortable. Undoubtedly the Germans are the greatest scientists and theorists in the world, but their technical methods and appliances are far inferior to ours. At the game of invention, the Americans hold all the trump."

People who are interested in antique collections will be interested in Peter Dunne's article in the last American Magazine. The worm holes, so sure a sign of age and value, are works of art. Here is what he says about them: "If you ever go to Florence you want to see that worm-hole maker. He's the best in the business. He's the president of the Worm-hole Makers' Union. He's an artist. Most of the old Italian furniture in America has worm-holes made by him. I think he must've started life as a worm. He came around all right and we smoked the triptery out of Florence by night, on account of the public monument law which prevents Italians from selling those rare old treasures to foreigners. The man that bought it was a butcher. When Rosenbloom went to America the butcher took him around to see his collection. The kid knows more about pictures on the wall than any one living, and he told me that the average age of the butcher's collection was about two and a half years."

Mayor Nichols attempted to establish a business administration by spending three evenings in the week at the city hall and inviting interviews from citizens for the purpose of discussing municipal affairs, but not a man came near him. He is of the opinion that the mayor is handicapped and helpless, and suggests that the commission plan of government is a much-needed reform.

Whatever may be said for or against the income tax law, it will prove a boon for a small army of patriots, who have long been waiting for a chance at the public crib. By the time all of the commissions are lined up and in good working order the state will have a payroll "for fair," and something will be doing in the way of increased taxation.

The claim is made that the United States supports an army of 400,000 people who live by their wits. They are engaged in all sorts of swindling schemes, from selling mines to denting out swamp lands in the Everglades of Florida, and the bait they offer is so alluring that suckers are captured in large numbers.

Statistics show that the average wage of skilled mechanics in Great Britain is a dollar a day, in Germany 83 cents, in France 75 cents, and in Belgium 63 cents, while in this country it is $2.32. It costs more to live in America, but it is worth the difference and so the gates at Castle Garden continue to swing in.

It is easy to understand why it costs the United States government a billion dollars a year to run when the fact is recognized that we pay out more than a million dollars a day for the support of the army, navy and pension roll. Think item alone represents $21 a day for every voter.

English and German capital has united with American investors in organizing a syndicate for the development of Cuban sugar plantations, and $50,000,000 will be invested. Some twenty-two plantations are included in the deal.

Canadian pulp and print paper will come into the country, free, in spite of the defect of reciprocity, but prices are not likely to be affected for some time to come.

San Francisco, by a decisive vote, yesterday turned down a labor union candidate for mayor, the democrats and republicans uniting in the support of an independent candidate.

The attempt of Italy to secure possession of Tripoli, a small province in Turkey, has led to all sorts of war rumors, but the disturbance is likely to be settled without serious trouble.

THE SITUATION AS IT STANDS.

After reading all the literature obtainable on the present political situation, we have come to the following unalterable conclusions:

"Taft is a gentleman, a scholar and a philanthropist, the best president we ever had since Roosevelt, and is going to be re-elected by an overwhelming majority in 1912, but at the same time Taft is a weakling, is easily led, has a nasty temper, is a frost as a statesman, doesn't know any more about being President than a hippopotamus knows about the fourth dimension, and he couldn't be elected again if all the Democrats died between now and election day."

Roosevelt is our first citizen, is the greatest statesman in the world and a splendid gentleman whose life is dedicated to the uplifting of mankind, but at the same time he is a howard, an imperialist, a demagogue and a schemer, he is a bonthead.

The Democrats are going to carry the next Senate and elect the next President beyond the peradventure of a doubt, if they can muster enough votes, but the Republicans are sure to win as usual, although the insurgents are going to kick the thing out of their own party and make it possible for a Democrat to get in, if, of course, the entire matter is not settled satisfactorily before 1912, in which case the Democrats will win anyhow unless the Republicans beat them.

BRIDGE ENGINEER HERE YESTERDAY

M. E. Allen, contracting engineer for the Central States Co., in City Yesterday Confering With City Engineer.

M. E. Allen, contracting engineer for the Central States Bridge company, which is building the bridge across the river at Racine street, was in the city yesterday and conferred with City Engineer C. V. Kerch regarding the Racine street bridge and the proposed bridge across Rock river at Fourth avenue.

Mr. Allen stated in behalf of the bridge company that the company would accept the contract with the city for the building of the Fourth avenue bridge providing the city would extend the time limit for completion to June 1st, 1912.

There was some question as to whether or not the Central States company would accept the contract awarded them by the common council and considerable correspondence passed between the company and the city engineer. The company demanded certain conditions in the contract, claiming that owing to the lateness in awarding it, due to the fact that the issue of bonds was delayed, they were not able to accept the contract. They stated their willingness to live up to their part of the agreement providing certain allowances were made.

It is quite likely that the common council at its meeting on Monday night will pass an order to extend the time limit on the bridge to the first of next year.

The Racine street bridge will probably not be completed much before spring. The work has been progressing slowly and the company is trying to secure more equipment to increase the progress. Foundations and superstructures and the steel will undoubtedly be put in this winter and the work completed in the spring. As soon as possible, when the work on the Racine street bridge is advanced far enough, the preliminary work on the Fourth avenue bridge will be started.

As soon as possible, when the work on the Racine street bridge is advanced far enough, the preliminary work on the Fourth avenue bridge will be started.

The Racine street bridge will probably not be completed much before spring. The work has been progressing slowly and the company is trying to secure more equipment to increase the progress. Foundations and superstructures and the steel will undoubtedly be put in this winter and the work completed in the spring. ATHLETIC TOPICS AT OPENING EXERCISES

This morning at the high school, the topic of discussion for the opening exercises was athletics. Mr. Manross began by giving a talk on football, in which he endeavored to rouse the enthusiasm of the pupils for the game next Saturday. The season starts Saturday with the game between Staughton and Janesville high schools.

Mr. Manross began his remarks by speaking of the interest shown by students in the college and the manner in which it was expressed. Then he brought out the fact that when the high school has a team the members of the school should have as much interest in them as the college students have, and should be as loyal to their colors as if they stood for some college. Students should support the team who are in all probability doing their best even though they are getting the worst of a game.

MIDDLEMAN BLAMED FOR HIGH PRICES

Roosevelt in Address to Pennsylvania State Grange Lays High Cost at Middleman's Door.

New York, Sept. 27.—That the middleman is responsible for the increased cost of living and that the only way to reduce prices is to get him out of the way was the declaration of former President Roosevelt. During his current tour to a delegation of 100 members of the Pennsylvania State Grange he insisted that the farmer is not receiving an adequate return for his labor. He could get higher prices, Roosevelt said, and the produce could be sold materially lower, if the farmers would work some sort of an arrangement whereby they could market their own food-stuffs.

FIRST GRAPE FRUIT ARE WELL MATURED

Shipment From Florida Gives Promise of A Fine Crop; Pure Food Laws Control Grape Fruit.

Florida grape fruit have made their first appearance in New York this season and give promise of being an excellent crop both in size and quality. A car load shipped from a plantation in Florida last week was one of the most over shipped at this time of the year, and brought the highest price. The flavor, size and color of these first arrivals was as good as some of the later shipments will be and probably better than a large part of them. Owing to the practice of some shippers of sending immature fruit to the markets a law has been passed which brings them under the supervision of the pure food officers. After examination of the grove from which the first shipment was made a complaint was registered against the company and the car held up for inspection. Discovering its condition, the health officers quickly passed it and it was sold in the New York markets without delay and at a high price.

Grape fruit will probably be in our market before the winter oranges and will be welcomed by a great many people who enjoy the fruit as a breakfast treat. The markets today are as follows:

MANY MURDERERS IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Seventeen Charged or Convicted of Taking Human Life Imprisoned in District of Columbia Jail.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, Sept. 28.—Cells in the District of Columbia Jail are occupied by seventeen persons convicted for or charged with taking human life. It is a record for Washington. The collection, however, is only one greater than was the case half a dozen years ago, when 16 murderers were at the same time lodged and fed under the roof of the prison.

Two of the present occupants of the roof have been condemned to death. It means the gallows, congress not having adopted electrocution for the enforcement of the death penalty. One of the two marked for capital punishment is Mattie Lomax, a negro woman. The other is Arthur Johnson, also a negro, convicted for a brutal and wholly unprovoked murder of a blacksmith. Antonio Sacral, sentenced to imprisonment for life, is held at the jail awaiting the outcome of an appeal.

AN OLD RELIC.

E. W. Lowell has again in his possession an old time relic which was brought into Janesville before the first railroad entered the city. This relic which is installed in the back of Mr. Lowell's new store formerly occupied by H. S. Johnson, is a remarkable old relic.

It was first shipped across Lake Michigan on one of the old fashioned steamers and landed at Racine. From there it was carted across country by an ox team and dropped here at Janesville. Lawrence & Atwood installed it in their hardware store on South Main street. Upon the sale of the store E. W. Lowell bought the relic and placed it in use in his store where it remained until about fifteen years ago when it was sold to H. S. Johnson and moved to its present place.

There is very little iron about the elevator except two or three large cast wheels and a large iron weight for a counter balance. The drum is a section of a hardwood tree about three and a half feet long and shows the wear which it has been receiving for over sixty years. Some idea of its age may be gotten when it is considered that Janesville was then only about ten years old and there were very few of the present buildings even thought of.

Swan's Mistake Fatal.

Under curious circumstances a large black swan killed itself in Melbourne lately. After a shower of rain the bird mistook a galvanized iron roof for a sheet of water, and sweeping down onto it was killed.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"ENGAGED" means "pledged in marriage." That is what my dictionary says.

I have looked up the word, because I have been asked by so many young people from time to time to define the privileges and claims and liabilities of the engaged state, that I wanted to have my friend Noah's help.

"Engaged" means "pledged in marriage"—that is, it means that two young people who are engaged, have decided that they love each other enough to leave father and mother, and all home ties and cleave to each other all through life.

Now how much liberty of intercourse with some particular member of the opposite sex other than the betrothed, should these two people who feel that way have. This is the question which in one concrete form or another, is continually being asked me.

And my Yankee answer is, "How on earth can they want any at all?"

The only question, I suppose, is whether either may provide himself or herself with an occasional substitute when he or she cannot possibly have his betrothed.

Of course, there can be no question but that neither would ever want anyone else, when he or she could have his life partner. That would be to deny the meaning of the betrothal, that each really prefers the other to any one else in the world.

Now, perhaps I'm wrong, but it seems to me that in this matter engaged ought to be considered the same as married.

And, when a man is married, he presumably doesn't expect to take some other woman to the theatre or a dance, even if his wife is away from home or he is in another city. And, as engaged people have made up their minds that they care enough for each other to be married, I don't really see why he should want to, when he is engaged.

And, when a woman is married, she presumably doesn't want to entertain or be entertained by other men, even if her husband is away. Why, then, should she want to when she is engaged?

I believe that if two people care enough to be engaged, they should care so much that all other men become sexless to the woman and all other women sexless to the man.

If any engaged man or woman finds that this is not so, he or she finds a danger signal.

Now all this does not mean that I am advocating that an engaged man shall become monklike in his attitude towards other women, or that women shall shut the society of all men and the two confine themselves solely to each other's society.

Married people don't do that.

It just means that I think that the same standards on this subject should be observed by engaged as by married people.

These are my notions on this subject.

You—my correspondents—have asked for them and you have them.

But please don't lay too much stress on them, or judge anyone's conduct by them.

I believe that the very best way to avoid trouble on this subject is for each engaged couple to talk the matter over frankly with each other, and abide by the feelings of the more scrupulous since one party cannot possibly suffer as much from giving up a little freedom as the other party would suffer from that arch-torment, Jealousy.

CARING FOR PEACHES.

To each pound of pared and sliced fruit add three-quarters of a pound of granulated sugar. Add a cup of water to the sugar, and when boiling hot add the peaches. When thoroughly scalded remove the peaches and cook the syrup until thick and clear. Fill the jars with the peaches and pour over the boiling syrup, and seal.

Peach Marmalade.—For every pound and a quarter of fruit add three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Remove the skin and pits from the peaches, and to the sugar and a cup of water, and cook until smooth. Stand on the back part of the stove and simmer for an hour. Add the juice of a lemon, then put into glasses. Seal by covering with writing paper wet with flour and water. This method keeps the glasses free from mold.

A delicious pie made from the fresh peaches sliced, is prepared as follows: Bake a good rich shell of pastry and fill it with the freshly prepared fruit; sweeten and heap sweetened whipped cream flavored with almond over the top.

Peach Ice Cream.—To a pint of cream sweetened to taste, add a cup of peach pulp that has been put through a sieve, and a tablespoonful of lemon juice added. Freeze as usual. Equal parts of peaches and apricots make a nicely flavored dish when frozen.

Sliced Peaches.—Peel, cut in halves, remove the stones and place in a granite pan. Fill each cavity with a teaspoonful of sugar, one-half a teaspoonful of butter, a few drops of lemon juice and a grating of nutmeg. Cook twenty minutes, and serve on pieces of buttered toast.

Brown Betty with peaches is delicious. One may use cake crumbs instead of bread. Butter a baking dish and put in a layer of peaches, then a layer of cake crumbs, a sprinkling of brown sugar and nutmeg. Repeat until the dish is full, leaving the crumbs on top for a finish. Bake until heated through.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Sept. 28.—The latest importations from Paris make it clear beyond a doubt that greater fullness in skirts is the latest dictum of the rulers of fashion. Of course, the change is by no means sudden. There is merely a gradual transition, but it is noticeable even to the inexperienced eye. To be sure, the average French woman wears the double skirt, the triple skirt, the skirt of tiny frills, and this sort of fullness becomes more insistent as the season advances.

The great fashion designers of Paris are beginning to bring out models in which fullness has a decided place. Narrow flounces are seen on the hem of frocks fashioned of chiffon and gauzes. The straight wide hem and the band of satin finishing skirts has claimed the attention of fashionable women for so long a time that a change of this sort immediately calls attention to itself.

There will undoubtedly be an effort on the part of the more progressive fashion-makers to widen the skirts very perceptibly; but this is not likely to be taken up, at least during the early season. Frills of Valenciennes and narrow lace will go to give new skirts the desired fullness. Yet even these are not enough to hang perfectly straight; but give a delightful frothy effect without actually widening to any perceptible degree the general lines.

A dainty model of flounced silk muslin had a group of lace frills set close to the hem. The bodice was almost entirely of lace, with three overlapping frills of lace forming a belted effect. A sash and girdle of soft peach-pink satin completed this simple but handsome costume. Width is also introduced in some cases by slashing the skirt on the side from waist to hem and inserting an inverted point of some contrasting material or trimming. Pleats that lap under and only are noticeable when the wearer walks are another way of obtaining the new line of fullness.

The coats of very short hip length seem to have gone entirely out of fashion, which will be gratifying to many women who found these coats exceedingly unbecoming. The belief that the new coats would be more closely fitted seems to have been without any foundation, however. There is a slight curving in of front and side lines on some of the new models, and there are, of course, certain belted and girdled models which are loosely held in, but the average coat keeps its loose, straight lines and its shortened waist line in the back, an effect usually obtained by clever cutting and handling of the side sections and various seams.

That the kimono sleeve has every intention of surviving the change of seasons is evident. Even among the best of the imported models one finds it, and the domestic models undoubtedly confess allegiance to it, but long sleeves are a feature of some of the most successful frock and blouse models, and it seems safe to prophesy that the ultra-modish woman of the winter will choose long sleeves for her daytime frock.

One of the best models seen, a black cloth stunningly embroidered in blue and dull yellow of a satiny tone, had a long close sleeve of black chiffon with a little finish of embroidery under the elbow where it fell over the hand, and with a fold of yellow chiffon and a shorter fold of blue veiling the very top of the sleeve and disappearing under the embroidered cloth at the armhole. Other models showed the upper part of the sleeve slightly full and joining a long, close cuff or an upper sleeve with close under-sleeve. A chic velvet frock of this stripe in green and black had its sleeves down as far as the elbow in the velvet and comfortably loose though not full. Just above the elbow it belled a very little and was continued by the black net for a depth of perhaps four inches. The net was drawn into a close band of the velvet, which headed what may be called a long, close cuff formed by two sections of net separated by a band of velvet.

The frill falling over the hand is a feature of the newest and most modish fingerless blouse long sleeve, of course, and of many other blouses and bodices as well. This feeling for the long sleeve is as yet confined chiefly to imported models, and among the cheaper costume blouses and frocks one seldom sees a long sleeve, but there will probably be a change later if the foreign influence makes itself clearly felt, and the long sleeve is once more accepted by the fashionable folk.

Among the handsome materials employed in the most recent models imported from Paris superb brocades and velvets are conspicuous. A very large number of the most beautiful brocades have gold in combination with color, the gold being more or less in evidence, according to the design.

Sometimes one is but conscious of a gleaming thread here and there or of a general shimmer of the background upon which the design is woven. Sometimes the gold is more boldly handled. There are wonderful chiffons and mousselines in color over whose surface run graceful designs entirely in gold. These in vivid color are stunning under shadowy veiling of plain diaphanous material, but the French designers do not hesitate to use even the most gorgeous of the brocades unveiled and in combination with plain monotone material or lace.

Now neckwear, keeping pace with other revivals, asserts itself in short, broad, plaited frills of black, white and ray mousseline de sole. This frill, exactly like those of long ago, is divided into unequal portions, the narrower left for the top, by a ribbon twisted through the middle and then used to tie it together in front or at the back, as one prefers. Although these frills soon lose their freshness and beauty, they are becoming and add just the amount of warmth necessary with the prevailing fashion of unlined gulleps and stock collars. They are especially welcome to the woman who still clings to the round, collarless neck. Occasionally one sees those plaited frills tied with long velvet ribbons, that reach below the waist line. Short-necked coats of black velvet are smartly tied with a big ribbon rosette, and matching in color the pattern of the feathers on the hat. Rich royal blue is particularly desirable in this connection.

There is nothing prettier than hem-toned white marquisette for collars and cuffs. For winter gowns and blouses it is charming, and is seen on many new models. One can make a set in an hour or two at home. The cost is insignificant and the effect charming. For those in mourning, white marquisette accessories are very pretty on blouses of chiffon or crepe, or on serge frocks.

The craze for the Tam O'Shanter hat is at its height. One example has a large, full crown of draped black velvet, mounted over a brim or band of skunk fur the brim being quite broad at the left side and at the back, and vanishing altogether at the right side. A full black agrote is erected at the center front, headed with a cabochon of gold bead from which gold fringe is suspended.

Faded designs in lace are expected to be one of the strongest features of the coming winter fashions.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE DANGER OF BEING WITTY.

BY A. W. MACY.

Sir Henry Wotton, for twenty years England's ambassador to the court of Venice, discovered to his sorrow that it is not always wise to be witty, even in so simple a matter as writing in an autograph album. Once when visiting at the house of a friend his host brought out the visitors' book and requested Sir Henry to inscribe his name in it, together with some appropriate sentiment. Willing to oblige and wishing to say something at once neat, witty and wise, he wrote the following, and appended his name to it:

"An ambassador is an honest man, sent abroad to file for his country."

But King James the First did not appreciate the effort of his ambassador. When told about it he was very angry, and after Sir Henry's term of office at Venice expired it was five long years before he received another appointment at the royal hands.

WHOLE RICE VS. MILLED RICE.

The entire grain of rice, unmilled, contains all the elements of nutrition, in proportion nearly the same as they are found in the blood of a normal person, so that for the adult rice is an almost perfect food, deficient only in fat, which can be added as cream and slightly deficient for all but the old, in albumen, a small percentage of which is contained in cream. But the whitened rice of commerce has been stripped of most of its albumen, the tissue forming element, and much of the mineral element, so essential in perfect nutrition. The whole grain could be readily obtained if there were a general demand for it. One grocer in each city where its value is recognized could be induced to keep a supply.

Why Women Are Thin in U. S.

"Isn't it funny," said a New York woman in Washington, "that American women become so dreadfully about after they have lived abroad for a few years? In Berlin recently I ran across an old schoolgirl chum of mine, who had been married three years before to a German army officer, and the very sight of her shocked me. She was just like a butter ball. Since then I have made observations, and I have come to the conclusion that the higher cost of living in America has a good deal to do with keeping our women with good figures. In Berlin one can get a taxicab for all the afternoon for a mere song. As the cabs are so cheap, the women naturally ride everywhere they go. Then there is that quiet air of satisfaction that everyone carries. It is the most natural thing in the world for a woman to get fat under such conditions."

Keeps Up to Its Reputation.

Horwenden (Ducks), the smallest parish in England, is maintaining its reputation. During the past ten years the population has shrunk from thirty-five to seventeen.

BATTLESHIP OREGON MAY LEAD FLEETS THROUGH CANAL. MISS WINIFRED MEARS.

San Francisco.—The most magnificent naval spectacle of the world's history will doubtless be carried out at the opening of the Panama Canal. It is planned to have the world's battleships in one grand parade across the isthmus of Panama to inaugurate its opening.

The work of a San Francisco girl, Miss Winifred Mears, who is promoting a national sentiment in favor of having the historic battleship Oregon lead the combined fleets, has been commenced by many naval officers, including Rear-Admiral Charles E. Clark. To her is due the credit for the plan. The plan has already been officially sanctioned and approved by Congressman Foss chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, and Miss Mears has sent a petition to the Secretary of the Navy signed by prominent people in California urging the movement.

Chiropractic a Fact and Not a Theory

Our Message is Health

Chiropractic was discovered seventeen years ago in an experience with a Junior who had been deaf for more than sixteen years, the deafness having been produced from a subluxation, rectified by a fall. Chiropractic Adjustments removed the nerve pressure. Nature stepped in and made the man well.

No man living has a perfect spine, the displacement, however slight, of a vertebra, whether to the left or right, causes a pressure on the nerves that lead direct from this joint to some portion of the body and that the peculiar disease, your particular disease, is caused from this pressure on this portion of the nervous system, and when this pressure is fully removed, restoration of the currents flowing through the nerves are restored and you naturally get well.

Hundreds of persons have gotten well by taking Chiropractic adjustments. You'll find any of them ready references as to the efficacy of Chiropractic.

Thought for Today

BY MRS. ROBERT M. LAFFLETTE.

PUBLIC HOUSEKEEPING.
A FRIEND of mine looking out the window observed that the boy on the bakery wagon took the bread with his dirty hands and put it into a clean bag just before delivering it. She took him to task because the loaves were not put in bags before they left the bakery. "Oh, Madam," replied the astonished lad, "that would never do at all. The bags would be so dirty the ladies wouldn't take them!"

The other day I noticed a boy come out of a bakery whose windows and counters were black with flies with an uncovered basket filled with bread. The wind was blowing a gale, and the air was full of dirt from the streets. He set this basket down on the sidewalk, while he handed each loaf into the wagon, whose open door exposed all its contents a second time to the streets. If by chance a loaf of bread made at home was subject to that kind of contamination, we would think it fit only for swill. But women quite thoughtlessly buy bread without knowledge of the conditions under which it is made or the way in which it is handled.

So with other things. Think of the way we tolerate, yes, patronize groceries and markets that display fruits and vegetables on the sidewalk, catching the dirt of the streets and contamination of flies from the opening to the closing hours.

This is what is meant by public housekeeping. When so much of our food must be procured from outside, the obligation rests on women to make all the agencies as clean and sanitary as those of the home. Women in every community should use their organized influence to bring butchers, bakers, grocers, laundresses, to the highest standards of correct housekeeping.

Harmony a Help to Style.

ANY woman does not realize just what an important factor harmony is in achieving style. She will see some costume that pleases her because of its air of smartness, and she will take careful note of how the dress is made or the hat trimmed, and go home and make a dress or hat like the one admired; and then wonder why the result is not satisfactory. But if she would study the costume a little more thoroughly, she would see that it is not the way the dress is made or the hat trimmed that alone has given the style, but the harmony of the whole, that is the cause of it.

A woman who aroused much admiring comment one afternoon at Lenox, the fashionable resort in the Berkshires, was gowned, when her costume was analyzed, in quite a simple silk dress, made with the popular narrow skirt and peasant blouse with elbow sleeves. It was white, pencil-striped in dark blue, and was trimmed with plain dark blue. Her hat carried out the same colors, and she wore elbow gloves of white kid. She was one of the best dressed women in that fashionable assemblage. Yet when analyzed, there was nothing about her costume, except the harmony of it, to give this good air of style.

Another woman was the cause of much admiring comment in a Pullman by her smart dress. But here again, when analyzed, was only simplicity and harmony to create the good effect. She wore a black and white foulard, made with the narrow skirt, with a deep trimming of black about the bottom. Her hat was of black straw, trimmed simply with a smart bow in white.

In another dress much admired at the Casino at Narragansett Pier was a dark blue silk, pencil-striped in white, and with a dainty lavender effect at neck and sleeves of hemstitched marquisette. The hat was a dark blue straw encircled with a snowy braid, and with two upstanding wings of the same downy feathers.

The good air of these costumes was due in each case to the harmony pervading them. From the crown of the hat to the tip of the shoe, there was not a jarring note. The dresses or the hats, if taken alone, would be considered by many women too simple. Yet it is this very simplicity, when it is right, that has so much to do with imparting chic.

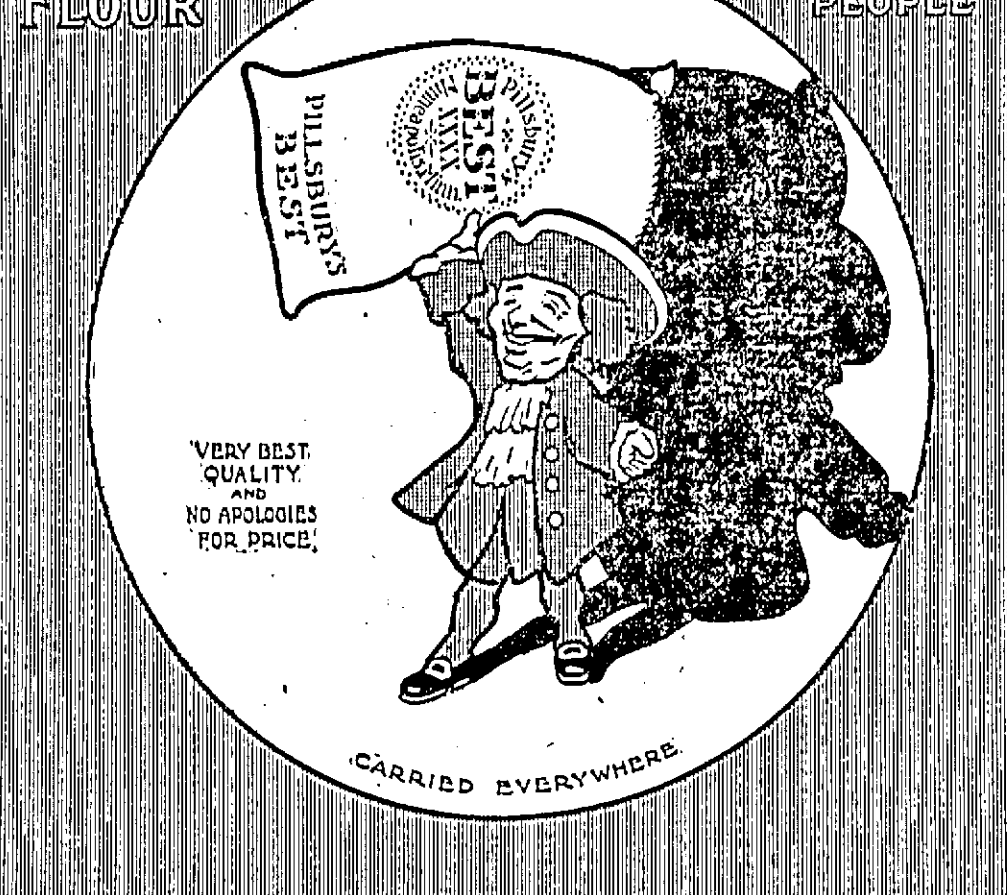

Many a woman fears to be simple in her dress. She thinks she must add much trimming and ornament in order to be stylish. But this frequently destroys the very effect she is anxious to achieve. For with much trimming and ornamentation, inharmonious creeps in.

Study the costumes that appeal to you as smart, and see if they are not, in the main, quite simple and altogether harmonious.

HUGE FIRE LOSSES IN NATION YEARLY

According to a recent report it is stated that loss of property by fire is $500 a minute.

According to a recent report by government officials the fire losses in the United States are tremendous and are annually increasing. Numerous cautions as to methods of avoiding fire losses are given. The report follows in part:

Fire losses in the United States amount to about $250,000,000 annually $500.00 a minute.

Under conditions as they are in Europe, the losses should be $100,000,000 only.

This tremendous difference is due to better building construction, less carelessness and greater individual responsibility in Europe.

It is estimated that 50 per cent of this appalling fire waste is due to carelessness.

We find this especially true in case of stove fires, and ask your merchants to learn and practice the important lessons of tidiness and carelessness.

Insurance money taken from the pockets of others pay the merchant for his merchandise, in part, never for interruption in business, loss of customers, etc.; so the honest merchant loses by every fire. The dishonest one is a criminal.

In the space of one bulletin we can give only a few cautions for preventing fires in stores and factories.

1. Buildings. Use fireproof material, as far as possible in constructing new store buildings, especially the roof. Provide and use fire doors and shutters to protect your store from possible fires in the neighborhood. In renting look for such a building. Your rent may be higher, but your insurance will be less and safety and security greater.

The other cautions we desire to give are all embraced in the terms "carefulness and tidiness in the home."

2. Never keep gasoline or naphtha except in an underground tank. Keep other oils in an outside fire-proof building, never in the main building, and allow no filling of lamps or of cans by artificial light.

3. Destroy all oily waste and rags each day. During the day keep them in a standard metal waste can.

4. Allow no rubbish, papers or packing material to accumulate in or about your store. Keep these in fire-proof rooms or receptacles.

5. Permit no ashes to be put in wooden boxes or barrels or against walls of buildings. Provide a metal receptacle.

6. See that your electric wiring and fixtures and all changes in the same are approved by the city electrician.

7. Never use swinging gas brackets.

8. Do not permit paper, cotton, or other decorations on your electric wires, globes, wires or fixtures. The use of candles in decorating is also dangerous. Keep inflammable materials and decorations away from stoves and stove pipes and steam pipes.

9. Do not hang cords over nails, hooks or suspend them by wires or wires from around steam pipes.

10. Do not use or sell the parlor or "Snap head" match. Keep matches in a metal box, away from mice and rats.

11. Before starting the heavy winter fire make sure that your heating plant and chimney are in good condition and clean. Have metal protection under and at the back of the stove. Run stove pipes direct to a brick chimney, never through cellulose partitions. The chimney should be built from the foundation up, never rest on brackets.

12. Never permit rubbish, floor near any building. It is better that several merchants join in building a safe burner at a safe and convenient place.

13. Wooden boxes and saw dust are dangerous combustibles.

14. All windows, doors, stairways and elevator shafts should be kept clear from goods and materials of every kind.

15. Have chemical fire extinguishers on every floor. Each merchant should inspect his premises daily.

To enforce the lessons of carefulness and tidiness the fire chief and his assistants will be on duty and will inspect all cities an ordinance providing for such inspection. Quite a number of cities have adopted this ordinance or one similar. If your city has not, it should do so. We can supply additional copies of this ordinance.

I'm glad there is one day for resting, one day the tired man owns, when he may cease his weary SUNDAY questing for bones, and still more bones. I'm glad to see the people wending their way to church and pews, to hear a tale of love unending and grace for me and you. It costs one's soul to hear the ringing of the church bells here and there; to hear the organ nobly ringing its music to the air. The thirteenth talk of trade's unspoken, store window shades are down; a stillness, soothing and unbroken, is resting on the town, save where some ancient dune is crowding a hymn she used to sing, before her life had reached its noon, and love had taken wing; save where the children, strange to say, find Sunday dull and gray, and wait a longing for tomorrow, when they can run and play. I'm glad there is one day of resting when wheels have ceased to hum, and all the bartering and jostling and greedy lips are dumb. One blessed day, one day in seven, a boon to have and hold! One day to think of hymns and heaven, forgetting gold!

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.
By H. L. RANN.

We are asked if there is any law which compels a man to give one-half of the road to an automobile. There is no law except the traffic law, which is a very uncertain thing. The law is about as uncertain as a man's pocket.

The other day we saw a two-cylinder runabout climb up on the dashboard of a lumber wagon filled with precious souls and candles and run its tonneau through the entire family without changing gears. People who have experienced the sensation tell us that it is a very unpleasant thing to have a 3543 run over by a two-cylinder.

If you meet a green automobile driven by a goggled-eyed imbecile with about as much control as a spitball pitcher, our advice would be to go onto the siding without any conversational preliminaries other than directions regarding the funeral, which should be brief and to the point. A forty-horsepower car with an added chauffeur can go through a split hickory wagon box without missing an intake, leaving death and men's luggage in its wake. Discretion is the better part of valor; the lean man said when he passed up the olives for fear of the drop.

When chickens perspire too freely and take cold, it will usually be found that their pinfeathers need setting. This is a very simple and easy process and will save many a pullet from pneumonia. Chase the bird around the back yard until the perspiration oozes from her pores, then lay her on her back and pinch the pores with Portland cement, mixed 4 to 1, which will hold the pinfeathers in place.

INVENTS A VOTING MACHINE FOR LODGES

W. W. Willis Perfects Device That Prevents Tampering With Ballots In Any Way.

Voting machines for use in general, state and municipal elections have been in successful operation for a long time, but it remained for a Janesville man, Wm. W. Willis, living at 416 South La Prairie St. to invent and perfect an entirely satisfactory machine to be used by secret societies and lodges in balloting on admissions to membership. The defects inherent in all other devices for this purpose have been entirely overcome in Mr. Willis' machine; it has been tried out and adopted by two lodges in the city and a number elsewhere, and within a short time he will be able to place it on the market. A hundred machines have been completed and parts have been prepared for a thousand more. Mr. Willis is doing all the manufacturing himself in a little workshop in the rear of his home.

The invention of the voting machine, says Mr. Willis, followed his personal observation of interference with an old style balloting apparatus in a lodge membership election. At that time he made up his mind that he would make a voting machine which would not be interfered with and whose operation would be entirely secret. This was more than seven years ago, and the first machine was completed in December 1904. Three years later, Nov. 9, 1907, he was granted the first patent on it, and a Canadian patent was secured, April 29, 1910. Since that time Mr. Willis has been busy arranging for the commercial manufacture of the voting machine.

The Machine.

The design of the machine is exceedingly simple and it can not possibly get out of order. It is encased in a small box polished oak. Through one end of this and covered over so as to insure secrecy, are two push buttons. One of these is nickel plated and the other coated with black enamel; the first to be pushed by those voting for, and the other to be pushed by those voting for the nomination or black-balling of a candidate. Each button operates a lever, both of which rest upon a beveled slide which trips a bellhammer, the bell ringing exactly the same no matter which button is pushed. This feature makes it impossible to tell how any member has voted but discloses non-voters. The black button, in addition to ringing the bell, operates a slide which pushes forward and drops a black steel ball into a slotted brass tube at the rear of the box. This operation can be repeated four times, four black balls being the maximum number needed to bar from membership in any of the fraternal organizations. The sound of the bell draws any noise that may be made by the moving of the steel balls, which as an additional precaution drop upon a cushion at the base of the tube. After the balloting has been completed the inspector can pull out a slide in the back of the box and note how many, if any, black balls have been dropped. By turning the machine over and pushing the black button four times the black balls are returned to position and the machine is again ready for use. All parts of the Willis' voting machine are of steel and brass, except the box and bottom frame. Mr. Willis makes every part of it in his workshop except the box and the bottom frame. Mr. Willis makes every part of it in his workshop except the box and the handle. The brass parts are stamped out by dies from sheet metal, and the steel springs made from tempered wire. The enameled and nickel-plating of the buttons is done by a local firm.

An Aged Inventor.

Mr. Willis, who is one of the oldest residents of the city, coming here forty years ago, is now in his eighty-second year, and is remarkably well preserved in health. He asserts that even now the boys don't care to "take a fall-out with him." Until about a year ago he conducted a general bicycle and repair shop on North River street. He is an all-around handy man at this kind of work, and his patronage has followed him in his removal to the little shop in the rear of his home. This is equipped with turning lathe, electric motor, circle saw, and other necessary machinery. Mr. Willis has taken his friends and neighbors into his confidence during the entire time that he worked on his invention and is confident that his machine will find a ready sale. He has recommendations of it from officials high in the fraternal orders who say that it is the best machine of its kind that has ever been offered.

With a smile on his rubicund features the hotel manager was enjoying forty winks. Trade was booming. The place was full. Good!

Knocks on the door of his sanctum recalled him to earth. In staggered a perspiring waiter.

"P-p-p-lense, sir," he stammered. "I'm in a terrible fix. A gent has just ordered roast mutton!"

"Well, what of it?" snapped the manager. "There's plenty of it, isn't there?"

"Yes, sir," breathed the distracted knight of the napkin, "but he's already had one portion for venison!"

First Member—So who hasn't a good claim to belong to our Daughters of Aristocratic Chicago society?

Second Member—No, indeed, I have fully investigated her case and her ancestor only went south with the New York team in 1911, and was then sent back to the minors. History doesn't show that he ever played in a big league game in his life.—Puck.

Aroused.
The young woman in the stern of the boat had whispered softly the word "Yes." "But stay right where you are, Jack," she added hastily; "if you try to kiss me you'll upset the boat."

"How do you know?" hoarsely demanded Jack, a horrible suspicion already taking possession of him.—Ideas.

A Valuable Man.
"Yes, he had some rare trouble with his eyes," said the celebrated oculist. "Every time he went to read he would read double."

"Poor fellow," remarked the sympathetic person. "I suppose that interfered with his holding a good position?"

"Not at all. The gas company robbed him up and gave him a lucrative job reading gas meters."—Lippincott's.

Too Slim.
"What's this? Lady at the seashore falls through a crevice in the board walk."

"I knew the girls were carrying this hipless craze too far."

Stumped.
"You know that grocer of ours?" exclaimed a Littlewood lady, excitedly, last Saturday night.

"Yes," answered her husband.

"What about him?"

"He gave me short weight this evening!"

"Why don't you call him down for it?"

"I didn't notice it until after I had paid him a plugged half dollar, and then what could I do?"

Never Finished.
"There seems to be no end to progress."

"That's so. We're always building the 'biggest boat.'"

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Jamesville Gazette, Sept. 24, 1871.

The State Fair opened with 3,000 entries. Prospects are flattering.

At Reedsburg last Tuesday night, the stable tents of Older's circus caught fire and eighteen horses were burned to death. Twenty-four others were so injured that it was necessary to leave them behind. They were all draft horses.

A landscape gardener is to be engaged to lay out the grounds of the court house park. Any improvement in that locality will be acceptable.

The school census, completed a short time ago, gives a total of 3,846 persons in the city between the ages of four and twenty years, of which 1,822 are male, and 2,024 are females.

Wells are running dry and cisterns give indications of the long continued drought.

A heavy frost last night had a depressing effect on the thermometer, bringing the mercury down among the thirties.

An instance of unparalleled liberality was exhibited at our board of supervisors at the late session. A considerable sum in a bill against the county for $26.98 and received $27.98. Such modesty on his part deserves a reproach.

Easy-Going Ruler.
The famous German traveler, Otto Ehlers, tells of an easy-going Chinese prince whom he visited in the Luon states, while on his way from Siam to Tonquin. This prince leaves public affairs to his wife, and when he has papers to sign he does so without looking at them. He has had his throne placed in the kitchen of the palace, so that he can receive visitors and watch the preparation of his meals at the same time. His subjects are the most contented people imaginable, and Mr. Ehlers thinks that he has discovered the plot for a new empire in this little state.

From the Crowd.
The cautious player had been in for nearly half an hour without scoring a single run, and the fielders were beginning to get annoyed. His gentle play at last grew so pronounced that they closed in to within a few feet of him, waiting eagerly for a catch. The light began to fall. It was essential that his wicket, which was the last, should fall before the time came to draw stumps. Closer and closer came the fielders, until there was barely room for the player to raise his bat. Suddenly a thin piping voice was heard from amongst the spectators: "Look out, Bill!" it said. "Take care you don't get your pockets riddled!"

SPANISH SWINDLERS SOUGHT NEW VICTIM

TELL SAME STORY THAT HAS CAUGHT OTHER VICTIMS IN YEARS PAST.

OLD GAME ONCE MORE

Buried Treasure, Secret in Portman.
Teas—Ald and Money Needed to Help Russian Banker.

It was thought that when the American public had been educated by the "Get-rich-quick Wallingford" type of swindler, the days of the old Spanish swindler would be numbered. However, it appears that there are still living in Spain a number of clever crooks who seek to take good American dollars and convert them into their own use by means of the buried treasure, beautiful daughter, imprisoned banker, or some such game.

It is only a few years ago when Janesville business men received several just such letters, one really making an investigation of the affair aided by United States postal authorities. Once more it has appeared, this time Amos Rehberg and E. E. Van Dusen being the recipients of the following letters, which were mailed in Madrid and addressed plainly to them at their proper addresses in Janesville.

The letters contained in the envelope were written in a cramped foreign hand but in good English, and were as follows:

15-9-11

Dear Sir:
Although I know you only from good references of your honesty, my sad situation compels me to reveal you an important affair in which you can procure a modest fortune, saving at the same time that of my darling daughter.

Before being imprisoned here I was established as a banker in Russia in which you will see by the enclosed article about me of many English newspapers which have published my arrest in London.

I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of 400,000 dollars I have in America and to come here to raise the seizure of my baggage by paying to the Registrar of the Court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden the document indispensable to recover the said sum. As award I give up to you the third part, viz.: 100,000 dollars.

I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you must send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me.

I am Sir yours truly,

MADROWSKY.

First of all answer by cable, not by letter, as follows:

Emilio Garces

Calle Santander 10

Valladolid (Spain).

"Recibida en correo"

Rehberg.

The newspaper clipping referred to is as follows and is a most clever reprint evidently arranged for the purpose of deluding the average recipient of the letter into the belief the article really appeared in a newspaper in England. The article is reprinted below:

ARREST AT A ST. PETERSBURG BANKER.

Charged with Fraud in Russia and Manslaughter in Spain.

Interview of the two Ambassadors. Some months ago, as our readers may remember, we referred in these columns to the great scandal caused in St. Petersburg, and in Russia generally, by a noted Banker who absconded, leaving a deficit of over five millions of rubles.

The Russian Police sought for him for a long time in vain for it seems he had not left the least trace of his flight and the continued search over Europe and America proved unavailing.

Yesterday, however, a Spanish Inspector accompanied by two officers from Scotland Yard and acting under instructions of the Spanish Ambassador, who had previously interviewed the Home Secretary arrested him on his way from the Hotel where he was staying, to the Steamship office. It seems that it was his evident intention to take passage for New York from information received by the Ambassador, he had been in hiding in Spain, where he lived with a woman and with his daughter. A few days before arriving in London he had quarrelled with another Russian, who was mortally wounded by a revolver shot during the scuffle, and who only lived long enough to denounce his assailant.

In an interview with the Russian Ambassador, it seems that the man he has been using in Spain, and who he gave on being arrested was not his real one, Manasaina being simply an alias, but after comparing the prisoner with photographs in his possession, the Russian Ambassador recognized him as Alexander Sadrowsky the criminal banker who eloped with 5 millions of rubles; he is a native of St. Petersburg, a widower 48 years old, with an only daughter that he left in Spain on exclaiming from that country.

On being arrested, two of Manasaina's or Alexander Sadrowsky portmanteaus were seized but although strictly searched nothing but personal effects were found in them. In spite of which, the Russian Ambassador declares that prisoner ought to have several million rubles somewhere.

The Russian and Spanish Ambassadors conferred yesterday evening as to whether the prisoner should be conveyed to Spain or to Russia, and after an interview with the Home Secretary, and in accordance with the extradition treaty of England, Russia and Spain, it was agreed that the prisoner should be conveyed to Spain, to stand his trial for manslaughter, and that only after his trial can the Russian Government ask Spain, through diplomatic channels, for his extradition.

Both Mr. Rehberg and Mr. Van Dusen consider the letters a joke and kindly loaned them to the Gazette that others who may possibly receive similar appeals from the mysterious stranger in the Spanish prison may learn that it is all a fake and on a par with the old green goods game, the gold brick and the explosion on the Lake Front in Chicago, and buying the Masonic Temple for a few hundred dollars.

New York, Sept. 28.—A record price was established at the coffee exchange when September coffee sold at 12.58 cents. This was the result of a liberal demand from shorts.

Sugar seemed to be on the down trade. The fact that Arbuckle Brothers were taking orders for granulated sugar at 6.75 cents net, less two per cent, for cash, was taken by sugar brokers to mean lower prices for the refined product in the near future.

COMET PARTIES ARE BECOMING POPULAR

Brook's Comet Is Now Visible in the Heavens About Eight Each Evening.

Comet parties have become the fashion, or excuse, for nightly gatherings at many Janesville homes these early fall evenings. Brook's comet, the "heavenly tramp" is now making a nightly appearance about eight each evening. Of course it is not as clear and distinct as Halley's famous visitor, but still it can be seen by aid of telescopes and opera glasses and gives a good excuse for an evening call and stroll.

Brook's comet is a tramp comet, it has no regular time for appearance. It has never appeared before, to any one's knowledge, and may not appear again for centuries. It is named for its discoverer. It is visible every night in the northwest, not far from the end of the handle of the "Big Dipper," and is moving slowly toward the southwest. Continuing visible for a month, it will reach its greatest brilliancy about Oct. 15. In appearance it resembles an ordinary star, except that it has a hazy outline.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WILKINS

COPYRIGHT, 1911, BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

She drew in a deep breath and nodded assent. "I'm all right, now," she said, though still her respiration sounded harsh and uneven; "at least, I will be presently. Are they coming?" she asked with a start.

"No," he answered. "They're not worrying about us. We can't get far—out off the island. When we're wanted, they'll find us easily enough. I'm afraid. For the present, Blackstock's entertaining them with the story of his misadventure." He laughed shortly. "Come," he said; and they turned again inland, moving at a brisk walk toward the bungalow—with what purpose neither could have said.

"But that engine-bell!" he asked suddenly, a moment later. "Where under Heaven did she drop from? You spoke of the schooner."

"It's ashore," she told him. "I saw it all before," she said. "I had been inside, looking for my trunk keys. I couldn't seem to find them at first. I was in the wireless room when I went in, but by the time I found the keys he had disappeared. I went to the door and stood looking out, wondering what had become of him and whether I dared risk a return to the beach—and you—while it was still so light; and suddenly the schooner shot out of the mist a little south of the point, over there in the west. She was running under power—I could just hear the engine troubling—and I don't think they suspected how close they were to the island. At all events, the next instant she struck—stopped short as if she had run against a wall, quite a distance out; and in two minutes her stern was under water. I saw the crew putting out the long-boat and jumping into it; and then it ran down to the beach.

"She's the one," he said abstractedly—"the schooner Appleyard was after, haven't you? You heard them call Blackstock by name by the name they know him under."

The woman said "Yes," indifferently, leaning more heavily upon him.

Out of the dusk, in which objects were just perceptible, the bungalow loomed up before them. By common consent they paused, Coast looking back toward the beach, Katherine peering up into his face.

"Are they coming, Garrett?"

"Not yet," he said, perplexity in his tone. "It's as I thought; they know they can lay hands on us at any time. So we can go hang until they're ready to take up our cue."

"But," he answered, squaring his shoulders and his jaw and infusing his manner with a confidence and decision he had been glad to feel, "we'll fool 'em. It won't be long now."

"You mean before your friend—Mr. Appleyard?"

"Yes, I'll be sure to be here at almost any minute—he or the revenue cutter."

"But, Garrett . . . what are we going to do in the meantime?"

"We'll have to stick to the open till the Echo comes. Is there a lantern in the house—anything to make a light with?"

"Why—yes," she replied in surprise; "there's a kerosene lantern we used at night, when it was necessary to go to the farm-house. But I wouldn't lend them to us!" Isn't darkness our surest cover?"

"Absolutely; but I've got to have something to signal Appleyard with. We agreed that I should show a light on the sand pit, in event of any trouble; but he'll be counting on the cutter being here by this time, and it won't do to let him make a landing on the beach near the long-boat."

"Is there one?"

"Yes, there is," he said briefly, adding inconspicuously: "But hurry."

He followed her into the house and, while she disappeared to look for the lantern, found his way to the divan and rubbed it of its covering—a heavy patterned rug, which he folded and tucked beneath one arm before Katherine returned.

"You won't wait the light now?"

"No. Give me your hand."

They stepped out into unrelieved darkness, dense and warm and rendered tangibly by its burden of humidity.

In the north arose a confusion of many voices; and in that quarter, likewise, was a freely show of weaving lantern-lights.

Land in hand they stole away like thieves, not three minutes before the bungalow was invaded by Blackstock and the crew of the schooner—a loud, mirthless, roystering company, making hideous the night with the clamor of their disputations and their carolings.

Unseen and all unsought (so far as they could say, with no sign given them of either detection or pursuit) they hurried off as warily and fearfully as wild things skirting the haunts of men, skulking silently over hills and down through hollows, over belds and fences, until at length they came without accident upon the spreading sweep of sand to the east of the long, low-lying spit.

Later they found themselves at the end of this, the northern extremity of the island; and here Coast put down the unlighted lantern and spread the rug in a slight depression between low dunes.

Chimney-like, unobscured, they had long since ceased to speak. From the regularity of her breathing Coast believed she slept despite her fears, overcome by thorough exhaustion of every fiber, nerve and faculty. For himself he would not stir for fear of waking her.

The light of a lantern peeped over the ridge, inland, and descended, wavering, through the Cold Lairs to the beach, then became stationary near the edge of the water, over which it shot a long, slender spear of soft radiance.

He understood that a guard had hardly been set over the schooner. From the bungalow came thin, far sounds of voices, now and then a husky shout inconspicuous in that hour of calm, immutable peace.

They were drinking up there, forgetful alike of danger and their recent disaster.

Abruptly he saw that the lane of lantern light was shattered and dancing. He jumped to his feet, with a glance above that showed him a faint flash of starlight. He held up his hand and a breath of air blew cool against it—a shiver of breeze out of the southwest. All this meant clearing.

Swiftly the breeze freshened. Vague forms of mist faded before his straining sight. A musical whisper and clashing of waves echoed through the hush of night. And like a curtain the fog fell back, with a white light the Echo's masthead. And while he looked the two moved and swung round, until he saw not only green and white, but the red port light as well, all moving steadily toward the island.

CHAPTER XX.

In his arms Katherine moved with a stifled moan of weariness, a gasp, and then a stiffening of her body which told him that she was now wide awake and mistress of her wits, in full comprehension of their position.

"Katherine—"

"What is it?"

"The Echo—Appleyard, I think—I'm sure. He'll be here in just a few minutes—ten or fifteen; and you must help me show the light."

"Help me up," she said in a dejected voice.

He rose and took her hands, lifting her to her feet. With one turned up-ward in both mounds, they turned toward the sea.

Off to the northwest the red port and white masthead lights of the schooner were slipping brightly shoreward—the green no longer visible—standing in for the beach where the long-boat lay.

A groan escaped Coast.

"Oh, the devil!" he said beneath his breath, exasperated; and aloud, half-frantically: "Hurry! He's taking the other light for my signal. Here!"

grasped up the steeper's rug and thrust it unceremoniously into Katherine's hand—"hold this so, to hide it from the beach, while I light the lantern."

With agonizing slowness the minutes sped, and still the boat held on directly for the beach below the Cold Lairs. Then abruptly the watcher by the long-boat awakened to its approach, apparently for the first time, and pounded the alarm by firing a shot from his revolver. A second later, in desperation, Coast sent a piercing whistle echoing over the waters.

Immediately after the pistol shot, the Echo swerved sharply off to the west, her red side light disappeared; and for a full minute held on so before she swung smartly on her heel and showed first the green and then the red, bearing straight as an arrow for the end of the sand spit.

On the island, at the same, the results of the report (which, when the boat came about, was followed by four others in brisk succession) were no less marked. Down the wind from the bungalow floated a wild chorus of shouts and calls. In its vicinity half a dozen twinkling lights studded the darkness on the uplands, springing to life as if by magic, and were whistled hither and thither like so many will-o'-the-wisps, suggesting a stupid, half-distracted ferment of conflicting, half-distracted, argument and will among the smugglers. Presently, however, some sort of order was evidently evolved; the lights converged to a common center and bore swiftly down toward the beach.

Coast put down the lantern on the swelling, rounded summit of a small dune, and took the steamer rug from Katherine, mechanically folding it, as he divided his attention between the nearing boat and the distant rattle—now streaming headlong down through the Cold Lairs and shouting as they came.

"No more need for this," he said, referring to the rug; "the light won't tell them anything they don't know now. But . . ." His perturbed voice trailed off irresolutely as he stood, a frowning glance directed down the beach.

Katherine was quick to catch the note of worry in his tone. "What is it?" she asked. "You're not afraid—you don't think—"

"No," he reassured her stoutly; "they're much too far away to catch us now. Only—hark to that!"

There was, in fact, a strange and sinister sound in the yelping of the gang; their cries were indistinguishable, but owned a dull, perilous pitch of ominous rage, infinitely disturbing, since it seemed so senseless—like the harsh and inarticulate snarling of an infuriated lunatic.

A shiver shot along Coast's spine. He found the woman, trembling, had moved close to his side.

"What does it mean?"

It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and reconstructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. L. McConnell, 117 Catherine St., Elmira, N. "I don't know," he said—"sounds like a pack of starving wolves. No matter; it can't concern us. In two minutes."

The Echo had drawn near enough for the noise of the motor to be perceptible; she was moving under power only, her sail down and not furled, hanging in stiff and clumsy folds in the lazy-jacks. He could even see the tender trailing astern, and make out a single figure at the wheel.

Then the latter bobbed down out of sight for an instant, and the purring of the engine was abruptly, followed by the splash of the anchor, and the little vessel brought up quickly, swinging round to face the wind.

With a warning cry Katherine stepped quickly away from Coast and swung round, whipping out her small but effective pearl-handled revolver.

"Stand!" she cried in a vibrant voice. "Halt, or I'll fire!"

Coast, as first to take alarm, had instantaneously poised her action. Wheeling, weapon pointed, he discovered the shadowed shape of a man running toward them—or, rather, staggering, for he seemed badly wounded—lurching and reeling through the undulations of the low, formless dunes, whose soft and yielding substance had deadened the sound of his approach until he was almost upon the two.

At Katherine's call he flung up one hand as if to signify a peaceful intent, but came on at unabated speed.

"Don't shoot!" he pleaded hoarsely. "I'm unarmed!"

"But know that voice too well. The woman's figure straightened to rigidity. "Stop!" she repeated, imperatively, inflexible. "Stop, Douglas, or—"

Coast threw out a hand and detected the muzzle of her weapon.

"Don't," he said aside; "if it comes to that, let me attend to him! . . . Blackstock!" he cried curtly. "Stand where you are!"

CATHOLICS GATHER AT CINCINNATI TODAY

CATHOLICS GATHER AT half Fifth-National Eucharistic in Session in Ohio.

(Special to the Gazette.) Cincinnati, O., Sept. 28.—The opening today of the Fifth National Eucharistic Congress of the United States was marked by the celebration of pontifical mass in the cathedral. The event was a most memorable one, as with few exceptions all the dignitaries and clerical heads of the church in this diocese participated. The numerous archbishops and bishops were their purple robes and heretics, with the white linen robes of the priests, made a most imposing spectacle.

The Most Rev. Edmund Macdonald, the apostolic delegate at Washington, officiated at the mass, assisted by Archbishop Farley, of New York, Archbishop Moeller of Cincinnati and other high prelates. The sermon was preached by Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul and was an exposition of the divine institution of the holy eucharist.

The business sessions of the congress began this afternoon, with Bishop Moeller of Cincinnati in the chair. The sessions will continue for three days and will be followed on Sunday by a solemn procession of the eucharist.

THEATER

In "The Heart Breakers" which will be seen at the Myers Theatre on Friday, Sept. 29, there is an organization of young men called the "Saxons" supposed to have been started by Prince Maurice of Saxony, whose members have been fitted by the opposite sex with such fatal results that they have become woman-haters. The object of the club is to seek revenge on the women who caused the wounded hearts. Members of the Saxons are deliberately set to the task of winning their way into the esteem and love of the girls who are sought as the victims. They are supplied with money, motor cars and other expediences.

The courtship is continued, first by one and then another, until the young woman permits herself to be kissed. The plot of the Saxons is then unfolded to her and she is then made to feel the sting and remorse that she herself once dealt out.

The Saxons have a head or "master" who directs their movements, and whose wife and services are tested in pursuit of one girl whom the other members are unable to conquer. Fay Munger, daughter of a crabbed millionaire, Old Mungar learns that the Saxons are seeking his daughter, so he locks her up in a castle, with a moat and a draw bridge in the Adirondacks and makes a bet of $50,000 that no Saxon shall see or kiss her before a certain day, when she is to be married to the man of his choice. How the Saxons storm the castle and get inside under various disguises forms one of the farcical features of the play. In the undertaking the "master" falls a victim to the wiles of Miss Mungar and the love match disrupts the club. Manager Slinger will present George Dumerai, late star of the Merry Widow, in the leading role, and he will be supported by a company of over fifty including the perfect Princess chorus.

If all the good things promised us by Manager Myers in the Troubadour Bros. Production of "The Aviator" come true we will surely have a metropolitan shown on the night of Oct. 2 at Myers Theatre. This is the show that made such an instantaneous hit in Chicago and New York last season. It is a comedy out of the ordinary, both in plot and scenic effects. The company carries a full sized Blériot XI Monoplane, which is set in full motion and actually arises from the stage at every performance. Special scenery is carried for all the acts, this combined with a metropolitan cast of players ensures a production of the better class. The play is a comedy of the highest type, which is pleasing to the old and young alike, and deals with a topic which is fast becoming popular. It is one of those rapid fire comedies which is sure to please, as attested by the numerous and flattering press notices the play has received from the leading daily papers of the country.

SOUSA AND HIS BAND.

Sousa organized the band which bears his name in September, 1892, and since then he and his men have traveled about 600,000 miles. Sousa estimates that he has given between 8,000 and 9,000 concerts, and when he reaches Vancouver in the latter part of September he will begin the last lap of the longest tour he has ever undertaken. This tour, which began in New York last August, has taken Sousa and his band around the world and they visited South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Honolulu, in addition to being heard once more in Great Britain and Ireland. The band will be heard here on Saturday eve., Nov. 18 at the Myers Theatre before their return to New York.

That succession of genuine fun and music surprises "Busy Izzy" with Gus, Sidney in the stellar role is booked for an early appearance at the Myers Theatre, Thursday, Oct. 12.

This big musical entertainment has met with enormous success in all parts of the country. Miss Carrie Webster, who is Mr. Sidney's chief aide in the fun making is a comedienne of rare ability and the rest of the cast and chorus is fully up to the standard set by other musical organizations.

The Blushing Octopus.

The octopus frequently changes its color, like a marine camelion. It would appear, from recent studies of the creature, that the colored pigment whereby this change in color is effected is contained in envelopes in its skin, in the tissues of which are muscular fibers actuated by nerves. Should these fibers become relaxed a dark pigment appears. The phenomenon is said to be analogous to blushing—Harper's Weekly.
